GROUPS AT ODDS WITH REGULARS

Hold Balance of Power in Both Houses of Congress.

MAY DETERMINE LEGISLATION

Influence of Present Session of Congress to Be Powerfully Felt in the Forthcoming Presidential Campaign—Sea of Difficulties Facing the Party in Power—President Coolidge's Task.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The Sixty-eighth congress convened today for the regular session.

Never before in the nation's history has a congressional session been convened under circumstances which forecast such outstanding difficulties for the party in power.

The Republicans have a nominal majority in each house, but it is a majority existing on paper only, for in both senate and house there is a well organized minority variously termed the "progressive bloc," the "insurgent bloc," or the "LaFollette group," which has power to block every piece of legislation which the party leaders may propose and hold the balance of power over every measure which they may endorse.

Upon all of the issues now before the country there exists a sharp division between these two factions as to the duty of congress in enacting remedial legislation. The regular Republicans, for instance, stand for the Mellon tax reduction plan without change, and the Esch-Cummins railroad law left alone; the opposing group within the Republican ranks, led by LaFollette, will demand reduction of taxes on the small incomes and increased exactions from the very rich, while they want the Esch-Cummins law thrown completely off the statute books and railroad rates on agricultural products forced down by congressional action. Upon all other questions likely to come before the congress similar differences exist.

Party Caucuses Held.

In its influence upon the forthcoming presidential campaign, the session of congress will be powerfully felt. Republican strategy will be to make a good record in passing needful laws, so that the party may go before the country in 1924, and demand election of a Republican president. Democrats, on the other hand, will seek in every way to offset Republican initiative with Democratic compromises. It is conceded furthermore by both parties that President Coolidge's prospects for obtaining the Republican nomination will depend largely upon whether or not he can control congress, or get through any of the measures which will be recommended in his message.

At the Republican caucus Saturday house progressives unsuccessfully opposed endorsement of Speaker Gillett as the Republican candidate for the speakership, and announced there were votes enough in sight to block his election unless important concessions in committee assignments and a modification of house rules were made by the organization.

Longworth of Ohio was elected Republican leader of the house without opposition, but two candidates were nominated for speaker at first Gillett—Cooper of Wisconsin, leader of the progressive bloc, and Madden of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee. Gillett received 190 votes, Cooper 15 and Madden 8, while one vote was cast for Little of Kansas.

On the senate side the opposition was of a passive character. When the Republican senators assembled to re-elect Senator Lodge to the majority leadership they found that not a single member of the bloc had responded to the party conference call and that Senator Borah also was numbered among the missing.

House Democratic members met later and agreed on Representative Garret of Tennessee as the party candidate for speaker, but the meeting was only a formality, since the selection had been agreed upon months ago.

DISTRESS IN HOCKING VALLEY

Thousands of Miners and Families Will Have to Be Cared For.

Columbus, Dec. 3.—Dr. John H. Berry, superintendent of the Athens state hospital for the insane, announced here that thousands of miners in the Hocking valley will have to be cared for during the coming winter months. The conditions of many miners was never worse, and as a result of the idleness of many of the mining companies hundreds of families are already feeling the pinch of hunger, he explained.

As a result of existing conditions, there has been a slight increase in the number of cases of insanity, especially among the aged persons of the district, according to Dr. Berry, and a still further increase would not be surprising, inasmuch as want and hunger weaken the mental as well as the physical body, he pointed out. "It is no fault of the men themselves that they are not regularly employed," said Dr. Berry, "and the sad plight of their families is brought about at this time by the fact that a very small per cent of the mines in the Hocking valley have worked at all for many months."

Organized relief societies to aid the miners will be an absolute necessity unless thousands of women and children, as well as the miners themselves, are saved from starvation, according to reports from the district. Merchants in Athens, Nelsonville, Buchtel and in other Hocking valley towns and villages are doing everything possible to relieve the situation, but will be unable to cope with it because of the vast area covered by the sad conditions.

Oil Exploded.

Canton, O., Dec. 3.—Harry Wilt, 23, died in a hospital here from burns received when a can of oil exploded at his home on the Canton-Louisville road.

MYSTERY CLEARED

Bones Identified as Those of a Boy Missing for Eight Years.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 3.—The eight-year-old mystery of little Jimmy Glass' disappearance was finally and definitely cleared up when the bones found under a brush pile near Greeley by Otto Winkler were identified by Charles Glass, the boy's father. Jimmy was wearing overalls and a pair of "coward" shoes on that spring morning in 1915 when he ran out of the house to play. And among the few grim effects that had withstood that long siege of the elements were two brass snap fasteners and a part of a shoe sole on which the word "Coward" was faintly discernible. Mr. Glass, who came from Jersey City, his home, after being notified of the find considered the evidence complete. Since his son's disappearance Mr. Glass has followed clues to South America and to Europe. It is now assumed that the lad, who was then only four, got lost in the woods and after wandering around for hours succumbed to fright and exhaustion. Otto Winkler, the farmer, was hunting near Greeley when he made his tragic find.

Boat and Liquor Seized.

Sandusky, O., Dec. 3.—Police seized a 50 foot power cruiser Bachelor, believed to be Canadian craft, together with 120 cases of Canadian beer and several hundred bottles of whiskey, when the boat tied up at a local pier. Lon Hoffman and Leo Hobbs, claiming to be from Toledo, members of the crew, were placed under arrest.

TREATY MENACES AMERICAN TRADE

Italy and Spain Have Vast Expansion Program.

SOUTH AMERICA THEIR FIELD

Accord Recently Sealed at Rome Held at Paris to Be a Practical Challenge to the Monroe Doctrine—Pact Also May Choke France in the Mediterranean and Menace Britain's Road to India.

Paris, Dec. 2.—A serious menace to America's South American trade influence, amounting to a practical challenge to the Monroe doctrine, looms in the new Italo-Spanish accord sealed during the visit of King Alphonso to Rome.

From the highest diplomatic sources it is learned that this accord, not only as the French fear, aims at the control of the Mediterranean, but is chiefly a union of two great Latin countries for a vast program of expansion in the southern half of the American continent.

For a long time European leaders have been alarmed at the rapid expansion of American interests in the vast empire constituting Brazil, Argentine and other South American republics. Despite the fact that a majority of the inhabitants of the countries are of Italian and Spanish descent, the old world home nations saw their influence, both political and commercial, vanishing before the assault of the North American standard bearers.

Then came the American exclusion act, which put up to Mussolini the gravest problems of his career, what to do with the ever increasing surplus population, now that the doors to the United States were mostly barred. The fertile brain of the Italian dictator then conceived the present entente with Spain. Not only does this entente strengthen these countries politically, but probably means their commercial rejuvenation.

The new Latin accord is comparable to the entente cordiale between France and Great Britain, which changed the destinies of Europe. The clasped hands of Mussolini and Primo De Rivera of Spain may effectively choke France in the Mediterranean, and at the same time seriously menace Great Britain's road to India.

When Spain and Italy, who already have the advantage of a common Latin language in South America together with racial affiliations, add to this preferred tariff schedules, liberal exchanges and immigration preferences, their dangerous rivalry for the trade now practically monopolized by America will not be questioned.

COAL AND OIL FIELDS FOUND IN ALASKA

Group of Scientists Return With Vast Amount of Data.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The return to Washington of a group of scientists and explorers sent out by the geological survey of the interior department places at the disposal of the government a vast amount of data on the possibility of extracting coal and oil from Alaska.

Coal in large deposits and two large seeps of oil were found, and the party reports it feasible to mine the commodities needed in heating and lubricating various plants and machines.

The navy's largest petroleum reserve, 35,000 square miles in the Arctic circle of Alaska territory, was explored in part and valuable new information collected which will be of great benefit to the government in future explorations and calculations.

Two oil deposits were studied at Cape Simpson, on the bleak coast of northern Alaska. Much coal was located there throughout the region explored and particularly to the westward near Cape Beaufort, where many seams of workable thickness were examined and measured. The physical conditions, the best method of travel and a general survey of the region were noted in the books of the explorers and deposited with the department.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Alleged Murder Confessions.

Bowling Green, O., Dec. 3.—Arrested here in connection with the murder of Edward E. Keep, alleged gambling house proprietor, who was shot to death nearly six years ago, Frank Simonds, 28, local contracting carpenter, and two other men confessed their guilt, according to Prosecutor Ray D. Avery. The two other men, also under arrest, have told stories similar to that of Simonds, the prosecutor declares. They are: Vernon Rodeberger, 27, of Sharon, Pa. and Floyd Houser, 29, of East Cleveland.

World's Record Broken.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 3.—The world's record for production of pig iron was broken in November by the blast furnace of the Trumbull Cliffs Furnace company, near Warren, the company announced. The furnace, using ore only, made 25,303 tons in the month, a daily average of 840 tons. The previous record, also held by this furnace, was 754 tons. The rated capacity of the plant is 600 tons.

Robbed of Precious Stones.

Toledo, Dec. 3.—William Sterns, an independent jewelry salesman from Philadelphia, was robbed of diamonds and other precious stones worth $75,000 at the Union depot, he reported to the police. Sterns set his handbag down while he purchased a ticket to Columbus, and when he looked for the grip it was gone. The jewels were in it.

Woman Robbed.

Cincinnati, Dec. 3.—After felling Miss Frances Shaw, 35, with a heavy blow and chasing a negro maid into the yard with a knife, two young men ripped the former's stockings to shreds and escaped with $475 in currency. One of the men is alleged to have formerly roomed in Miss Shaw's residence.

Helped Quell Riot.

Cincinnati, Dec. 3.—Funeral services were held here for Thomas Henry Wright, 74, who died at the home of his daughter. Mr. Wright took an active part in quelling the famous courthouse riot in 1884, having been a member of a party of 32 men who held the rioters in check the first night of the trouble.

Hit by Train.

Troy, O., Dec. 3.—A freight train struck an automobile containing three men at Laura, 12 miles west of here, injuring two of them. The men, Eli Sease, 44, of Potsdam, O.; Boyd Henderson, 41, of Laura, and Raymond Sandow, 25, were returning to their homes after work in a neighboring town.

Suffocated by Fumes.

Dayton, O., Dec. 3.—H. S. Forsythe, 40, manager of a Cleveland fumigating company, was suffocated and an employee of a Dayton store was overcome and may die following the fumigating of a store here.

Killed in Brawl.

New Philadelphia, O., Dec. 3.—Marjetta Eves, 45, was shot and killed in a poolroom brawl at Dover. Fred Green, 26, is under arrest.

Three Persons Injured.

Akron, O., Dec. 3.—Three women, a child and a man, all of this city, were injured when an auto driven by Norman Kerr swerved across a crowded sidewalk in the business section and crashed into a large show window of a dry goods store. Falling glass was the cause of most of the injuries.

TERMS HELD IMPOSSIBLE

French Treaty With Ruhr Magnates Condemned.

RUINOUS PLEDGES EXACTED

Berlin Predicts That After Temporary Improvement the Situation in the Ruhr Will Deteriorate Further. French Tributary State Seen on Ruins of Rhenish Economic Life. Pact's Provisions.

Berlin, Dec. 3.—Oppression by the French army of occupation, the terrible need of 3,000,000 unemployed, with the reign of terror inaugurated by separatists armed by the French, during the last week forced the mine owners of the Ruhr and Rhine to conclude a treaty with the French and Belgians which will have momentous consequences.

The mines of the Rhineland and Westphalia are pledged in the future to deliver to France coal and coke to the extent of 15 to 35 per cent of the production of the year 1921. Besides this the army of occupation is to receive coal gratis, and the Rhenish railroads are to be supplied at prices fixed by France. Moreover, for every ton of coal sold in unoccupied territory or abroad, 10 French gold francs are to be paid. For the period since the occupation of the Ruhr an additional coal tax of $15,000,000 is imposed.

These conditions are held impossible here. After a temporary improvement the situation in the Ruhr will further deteriorate, which is said to be France's political aim. On the ruins of Rhenish economic life, the French tributary state in the Rhineland is to develop. The great danger is that the French will be successful in this aim.

Economic and social conditions in Germany are increasingly gloomy, aggravated by the political crisis which has led to eight chancellors since the revolution. The lack of strong personalities in public life is bitterly felt. Party wrangles appear to many professional politicians as more important than questions vital to national existence.

In Germany the people are growing apathetic toward a sterile parliamentarism. Yet it must not be forgotten that France since the war has sabotaged all constructive measures by a refusal of a reasonable settlement of the reparations question and economic chicanery.

At present everything is pressing towards a decisive crisis. The following are the imperative demands of the hour: The immediate settlement of the whole problem of reparations with the granting to Germany of a moratorium of several years; a reasonable supply of foodstuffs for the population for the coming winter; establishment of the finances of the reich and the several federal states on a sound basis with strict avoidance of unproductive expenditure, and economizing production in industry and agriculture by increasing the output to the utmost capacity.

FOR FEDERAL REGULATION

McAdoo Outlines His Position on the Railroad Problem.

San Francisco, Dec. 3.—William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, war-time director of the railroads, and probable candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, speaking at the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, outlined his position on the railroad problem.

McAdoo said that he did not think government ownership "is the wisest solution of the railroad problem," but that "an earnest effort should be made to secure railroad reform, preserving the principle of private operation, but under more effective federal regulation."

"If that fails," McAdoo declared, "after a final test, the alternative of government ownership may become inevitable. The question ought to be taken out of partisan politics and dealt with as a common sense economic problem and with a desire to find a solution that will be just to all interests, namely, to the public, to labor and to capital."

Alleged Slayer Caught.

Canton, O., Dec. 3.—Felix Rusco, 27, was brought to Canton from Beaver Falls, Pa., and lodged in the city jail on a charge of slaying Tony Vancencia, 45, in Canton, eight months ago.

SIX HUNDRED DEAD

Dire Result of the Breaking of a Big Dam in Italy.

Rome, Dec. 3.—Six hundred lives have been lost as the result of the breaking of the big dam at Lake Gleno, according to figures received here. The town of Dezzo has been completely inundated, as have several other towns and hamlets in the Brembana valley. Troops have been rushed to the scene to aid in the identification of the bodies which are strewn throughout the valley. It is probable that martial law will be declared to prevent looting.

The raging torrents, which are leaving millions of dollars' worth of destroyed buildings in their wake, have not yet abated and an alarm has been sounded to all towns in northern Italy. The dam, which was 30 yards high, 5 kilometers long, collapsed in several places at once without notice and the waters of Lake Gleno were unleashed with unprecedented fury. Rain continues to fall in the devastated area, hampering the relief work.

Guardsmen Meet.

Columbus, Dec. 3.—The convention of the Ohio national guard and the State Rifle association opened today in the chamber of commerce auditorium and will continue through Tuesday. Officers will be elected at the closing session tomorrow. Speakers include Roy E. Layton, former adjutant general, who will discuss "Court-martial," and General F. D. Henderson, adjutant general, "Armory Building and Maintenance."

Sentenced to Life Imprisonment.

Cincinnati, Dec. 3.—Two confessed bandits, Dale R. Waterfield, 26, and Herbert Weisenberger, 27, were sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary. They pleaded guilty to second degree murder for the killing of Edward McClain, alias "Mississippi," of Little Rock, Ark., the third member of their holdup party. McClain was shot accidentally when the two were attempting to hold up a man.

SHADE VETERAN OF 2 WARS

South Dakota Legion Man Had Many Experiences in Philippines and in France.

M. L. Shade of Mitchell, S. D., a veteran of two wars, has one recollection of army life that he claims is unforgettable, and at least is so unusual that experiences of any A. E. F. men cannot duplicate it, unless they be "gobs". Shade, an ardent American Legion worker in South Dakota, declares that he spent 90 days on an army transport without setting foot on shore, during the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection following.

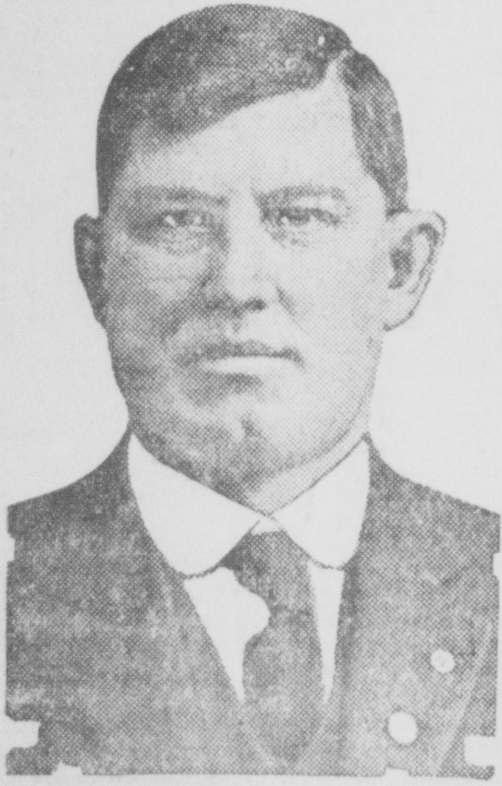

He was born in Princeton, Ill., in 1876, and at the age of fifteen was thrown on his own resources, with but a scant education gained in rural schools. His earlier life work was that of a laborer in mines, steel mills and on farms.

But the war with Spain came and he enlisted with an Iowa Guard regiment ordered to San Francisco, which embarked on the transport Covington for Manila. After a long sea voyage the boat was sailed into Manila bay, but orders were changed and the ship was sent southward with the troops. At Hilo Hilo the transport put in, but the troops were held up again. Back the ship went to Cavite, where, after 90 days, the men set foot ashore.

Shade served with his regiment in several severe engagements, and on discharge re-enlisted with another Philippine organization. In all, he fought in 222 battles. He was mustered out at Manila in 1901, remaining there for a period on confidential work for the government.

Back in the States, he became associated with life insurance firms in Rockford, Ill., and while there was a member of the National Guard. Then he went to Texas, where he was hit by the panic of 1907, but, undaunted, made his way back to Sioux Falls, S. D., joining the guard almost immediately after his arrival there. He served as chief of police of Mitchell, S. D., in 1911, and received a commission as major in the South Dakota Guard that year. He was called for border service in 1916, and was discharged early in 1917.

At the outbreak of the World war he was sent to Camp Greene, N. C., and was attached to the Forty-first division. During overseas service he commanded several ammunition guard units, served with the French at Solissons and was sent to St. Aignan-Noyers to establish a large replacement depot for motor transportation. He was later commissioned as lieutenant colonel and ordered to Romorantin, where he assumed command of the air service shops, built up from a personnel of 600 to 7,000 men. He virtually commanded all troop units at this camp.

Before he sailed for America he was cited for meritorious service and given a full colonelcy. On his arrival in South Dakota he was named to the state highway commission, of which he is now a member.

His work for the American Legion has been thorough and enthusiastic. He led the local post of the Legion during its early days and served in several capacities with this post. He was named as department commander in South Dakota in 1919-1920, and was national executive committeeman during that time. He has been a delegate to all national conventions of the Legion and has served on convention committees of military policy and of finance.

In all his reminiscences of army days, however, Colonel Shade declares that none are so vivid as those spent dodging around the Philippines on the army transport, seeking a place to land.

Removed Flags From Graves.

Legion members in Rutherford, N. J., recently appeared before the city council to protest the action of municipal employees in removing flags from the graves of veterans in a local cemetery. The flags had been removed following a "clean up" of the burial place and were discovered by the Legion men in a dirt heap outside the cemetery.

Rich Evening Gown Is in Dull Green Chiffon

This charming evening gown is in dull green chiffon sumptuously embroidered with dull gold beads.

Poplin Is One of Most Satisfactory Fabrics

Poplin is one of the most satisfactory materials that we can buy.

The name poplin is from the French word "popeline" and means "luster." It is a fine, soft, lightweight fabric of many varieties, but you can always recognize it by its distinguishing feature—that of having a fine cord running across the cloth.

This corded or ribbed effect is produced by having a fine warp thread and then a soft, heavier filling thread. Its warp yarns are so fine, and there are so many of them, that they cover up the coarser filling yarns completely. These, because of their coarseness, form the ribs across the goods.

We can perfectly understand, now, what happened to our old poplin dress hanging in the closet. The fine warp threads broke down, and left its "ribs" exposed.

That can easily happen, from the very nature of the goods, if a weak quality of yarn has been used in the warp. The heavy cord, often cotton in a wool or silk poplin, simply cuts through the finer warp threads.

As a rule, however, a good quality of thread is used in the warp, for the very good reason that it is thrown to the surface and so is going to have to bear the heaviest brunt of the wear. Because the filling yarns keep under cover anyway, a much cheaper quality can be used without shortening the life of the cloth much.

Not all poplins are silk, by any means. You can find it in silk, wool, or cotton; and not only that, but in silk-and-cotton, silk-and-wool, and wool-and-cotton.

The highest qualities of cotton poplin are often mercerized so that it is very attractive and has a sheen almost as lustrous as that of silk. Naturally, it is exceedingly durable, and stands laundering well.

Wool poplin has a more or less wiry and springy feel, and so keeps its shape well.

Silk poplin is also elastic, and so keeps clean, and does not wrinkle or crush easily.

We frequently hear an objection voiced against silk and wool poplin by some dressmakers on the ground that the coarse filling cord makes the garment bulky in the seam. A good tailor says that this can be partly overcome by making the goods with the filling threads running up and down; and that this also insures the poplin falling in more graceful folds.

Winsome Blues Among Most Popular Colors

Among the colors that have been introduced for the present season one finds a marked favor accorded certain shades of blue, notably those that are found in the art and the embroideries of China. Distinguished by brilliancy, they are handled with great skill and are vastly more becoming than one would suspect, for in modern designing even the smallest bit of color is employed with telling effect.

There is another blue that is exploited by a very well-known French costume designer. In its clear tones, with a hint of green it is one of the most beautiful shades imaginable.

Sapphire blue comes in for a great deal of attention, especially in frocks destined for evening wear. A crowd that gathered around a shop window when the entire space was given over to evening dresses of blue velvet proved beyond doubt that the color has caught the feminine fancy. Almost without exception they were fashioned on slender graceful lines, with a note of contrast introduced in silver embroideries or motifs of crystal beads and brilliants. The effect was strikingly lovely.

Hanging Tapestries.

Tapestry panels may be framed in moulding or hung on the wall curtain fashion, suspended from a brass rod by means of rings sewed on tape. The latter is rather favored for large tapestries.

Rhode Island School Leader.
The first public school in New England, believed to be the first in the United States, was launched at Newport, R. I., 283 years ago, when the men of Rhode Island voted to support such an institution to be conducted by the Rev. Robert Lenthall, a Church of England clergyman.

In the colonial days in America little thought was given to the education of the children of the "common" people, and among the well-to-do the opinion generally prevailed that such people were better off without any education.

The Rhode Islanders did not share this view, however, and when Rev. Mr. Lenthall proposed to "keep a public school for the learning of youth" he found ready support for his project. He was granted 100 acres of land to be "laid forth and appropriated for a school, for encouragement of the poorer sort, to train up their youth in learning."—Capper's Weekly.

CUPID AIDS REALTY AGENT
New Yorker Specializes in Procuring Homes for the Newly-weds.

An uptown real estate agent is doing a thriving renting business by keeping in touch with his neighborhood and listening in on all gossip. When he hears of an engagement of a couple he immediately calls upon them to learn what their plans for a home may be, and a day or so later meets them with his car, conducts them to several apartment houses where he has something for rent, and in the end usually succeeds in getting their signature to a lease on an apartment which otherwise they might have considered too high priced.
He finds that, generally speaking, young couples favor a small apartment—living room, bedroom, kitchen and bath. When an addition arrives to their family he is again on hand with larger apartments. He wins them over to a more expensive, larger place, sublets their own apartment for them and earns two commissions.—New York Sun and Globe.

PLAYING "HOOKEY" FROM SCHOOL IN GUAM COSTLY

Mothers of Children Back to Agency Law to Avoid Paying Fine of 15 Cents.

A native mother on the Island of Guam will sit all day at a school room window to prevent her offspring from playing hookey. This is not because of her desire that the child shall acquire learning, but to avoid paying the truancy fine of 15 cents.
Chaplain W. L. Thompson, U. S. N., school superintendent, says he is endeavoring to adapt the work of education on the island to the particular needs of the natives. The Chamorros take readily to penmanship, mathematics, and all kinds of mechanics. The children frequently know American history more thoroughly than youngsters in the United States of the same age.

"We have standardized the eight grammar grades and added a high school, which places the educational facilities of Guam on a par with those in the Philippines and the United States," the superintendent says.
"The industrial classes, despite our limited funds and equipment, have been especially successful. Lace making, basketry, and hemp weaving of various articles have reached a high grade of perfection. The boys in their carpentry classes make the furniture and other wooden fittings for the schools. The girls so readily take to dressmaking that American clothes are gradually replacing the graceful costume of the native women.

"The real problem is presented by the classes in cooking and gardening. The children enter with zest into the competitive raising of many kinds of vegetables. They also learn the principles of dietetics and do excellent cooking. But they refuse to carry home any of the vegetables they raise or to eat anything they cook, with one exception, cake.

"The native diet consists mainly of rice and fish, and the natives prefer the canned Alaska salmon, if they can pay for it, to the delicious fish of these waters.
"But we cannot impress upon them the desirability of eating vegetables. It is almost impossible to persuade the children or adults to even taste an unfamiliar food. Consequently the instruction in cooking and gardening, to date, has shown little practical result."

FIND REMAINS OF ESKIMOS

Archaeologists Examine Bones of Skeletons at Rochester.
Archaeologists are examining five skeletons unearthed at Rochester, N. Y., by contractors at work on a new road near here. The bones, believed those of Indians of remote age, were found in sitting positions by the excavators. No trinkets or other Indian relics were found.

Alvin H. Dewey, of Morgan Chapter, New York State Archaeological society, believes the bones those of members of a race of Eskimos that roamed Canada and western New York state before the Iroquois. No records of Iroquois burials in sitting positions have been recorded, he said.
The bones are in the city morgue and will be buried at the completion of the investigation. They were in a state of perfect preservation when dug from the soil.

KILLS BEARS WITH ARROWS

Alaska Doctor Uses Primitive Weapon to Hunt in Alaska.

"Want to be a real sportsman? Then carry a bow and arrow out into the wilderness." So declares Dr. Walter W. Council, who has killed nine of Alaska's famous brown bears, three of them with heavy arrows shot from a 7-foot yew-wood bow.

Doctor Council, who is head surgeon and owner of the General hospital at Cordova, doubled up an old mattress and hung it at one end of the basement in the hospital. Into this he daily practiced shooting arrows until he acquired strength enough in the arms to push an arrow entirely through the 18 inches of cotton, hair and cloth.

GEYSER FOUND IN CRATER

Scientist Sees End of "Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes."

C. M. Fenner, a scientist from the Carnegie Institute, Washington, who reached Seattle, Wash., recently from an extensive exploration trip in Alaska, announced he had discovered an enormous mud geyser in the depths of the smoking and rumbling crater of Mount Katmai.

Fenner stated it was his belief that within a few years "the valley of ten thousand smokes" would be a thing of the past owing to the rapid disappearance of smoke-emitting vents.

Bathing Nude at Night Legal.
Bathing without suits on the beach in evening and early morning could become the custom at Santa Barbara, Cal., as it has been discovered the old bathing ordinance in force does not require suits at night. It has been known for some time that bathing parties have been held sans suits.

Plucks Huge Lemon.
F. H. Dudley, well-known resident of Ventura, sends out a challenge to the lemon growers of the Southland. Recently he picked a lemon from a tree in his garden weighing one pound and six and one-half ounces. It measures 16 by 13½ inches.

Eccentricities of Genius.
Paul Verlaine, a modern French poet, was a genius whose life was passed in alternate stages of religious ecstasy and deplorable excesses. After 1870 he led the traditional bohemian life in Paris, then disappeared for eleven years. In 1881 he appeared in the public eye as a quasi-Catholic with his "Sageesse," perhaps his best-known work. From this time to his death in 1896 Verlaine remained, except for brief intervals, among the cafes of the Latin quarter, drinking absinthe, carousing and writing verse and journalistic articles.

All Like to Give Advice.

A funny kink in human nature is that while men dislike to be told facts, they love to tell facts to others, writes Fred Kelly. Nearly everybody is trying to dodge facts. We are all seeking less reality and more fiction. Story books always sell better than those containing plain truths. Indeed, the only way to be sure of having facts read is to dress them up in story form as if they weren't necessarily true. But while we are trying to avoid hearing too many facts, some of which are likely to be unpleasant, what fun it is to meet somebody who will listen to a few of the things we know! Thus we find here a fortunate situation. When we have to learn something, it is not difficult to obtain reliable information. The man who is an authority on almost any subject is willing to drop his work and give first-hand knowledge to any one that comes and asks for it. Indeed, there is no surer way to gain a man's undying friendship than to go to him seeking advice. Even though his time is extremely valuable, the man who knows and knows that he knows, will talk and pass on his knowledge just as long as the caller will listen. In more than twenty-five years' experience as a reporter, I have never yet been refused information by a real authority. The business man who fails to find out what he needs to know has only himself to blame. There is always somebody who would gladly tell him. Even one's competitor will usually answer almost any reasonable question about his business.—Nation's Business.

His Alibi.

The squire was walking through the village one day, wearing a very shabby coat, when he met a friend. "Surely you are ashamed to be seen in such a dreadful coat?" said the friend. "Certainly not," replied the squire. "Everybody knows me here." A week later the squire was in Birmingham, still wearing the old coat, when he chanced to meet his friend, who again commented upon his untidy appearance. "What does it matter?" was the reply. "Nobody knows me here."

OLD RESIDENCE SOLD.

The old Tuthill residence on South Broadway at the intersection of Walnut street, Lancaster, which has been the home of the Tuthill family for more than a century was sold by the heirs of the late John Tuthill to George Rabe, who will convert the residence into a business property. The property was built by Mr. Claspil, the great-grandfather of Mrs. Clara J. Bradley.

World's Potato Crop Ranks High

Greatest Production Is in Northwest Europe Where Conditions Are Best.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The importance of potatoes in world agriculture is emphasized in a special report published by the United States Department of Agriculture. The world crop was estimated at more than five billion bushels last year, exclusive of Russia. In countries reporting to date, the 1923 crop is 79 per cent of that in 1922. Figures in both years do not include the many small patches of potatoes grown in gardens for home use, the department says.

Region of Great Production.

The region of greatest potato production is in northwestern Europe where the soil and climatic conditions favor the production of potatoes and rye rather than of corn and wheat, the department says. In this region potatoes play an important part in the diet of the people, in the manufacture of alcohol and in feed for live stock. Variations in potato production in northwestern Europe therefore affect the market for American wheat, rye and corn, the department points out.

Germany is the world's largest producer of potatoes, the report states. Production this year is estimated at 1,200,000,000 bushels as compared with 1,494,181,000 bushels in 1922. Poland ranks second as a spuds producer with an estimated production in 1923 of 896,022,000 bushels as compared with 1,220,576,000 bushels last year. Production of 15 countries in the northern hemisphere this year is estimated at 3,089,096,000 bushels as compared with 3,900,730,000 bushels in 1922.

Annual Imports Large.

During the pre-war period annual imports of potatoes into the United States were around 3,658,000 bushels, or a little more than twice the quantity exported. Since 1920, however, there has been a marked decrease in imports until in 1922 the quantity shipped from foreign countries was only 1,775,000 bushels, the department says. This was less than one-half the average quantity imported during 1910-14, and more than 1,000,000 bushels less than American exports last year. More than 60 per cent of American exports go to Cuba.

The Netherlands leads as an exporter of potatoes, and supplies at least 25 per cent of the world's total exports, the department says. Last year Italy exported approximately 5,000,000 bushels, Canada 4,000,000 bushels, and Denmark 2,000,000 bushels.

Rattling in Breathing Not Uncommon in Fowls

Rattling in breathing is not uncommon among fowls of all ages. It is usually due to too much mucus in the throat, windpipe or bronchial tubes. Anything that irritates the lining of the breathing tubes increases the mucus flow and produces an obstructed breath. Bronchitis, canker, roup and other acute diseases may show this symptom. The constant breathing of dry dust, especially if it be gritty and alkaline, is sometimes responsible where fowls show this trouble but have no real disease. In its advanced stages, "rattles" is a hard disease to cure. The best help comes through prevention. Pure air, clean dropping boards and floors, sweet food and water do more to prevent "rattles" than drugs.

New Seed Treatment Is Time Saver for Farmer

One great advantage in using the copper carbonate dust method for treating seed wheat and oats for the control of smut is the fact that the work can be done in the late fall or winter when other farm tasks are less arduous. J. G. Leach, plant authority of the University of Minnesota, says that two ounces of the copper carbonate dust should be used for each bushel of grain. After treatment the grain can be sacked or stored in a bin until spring, when it is ready to plant without further attention. "This method has given results as good as any obtained with formaldehyde," says Mr. Leach. "It causes no seed injury, is less trouble to apply and all the work can be done in the fall or winter before the spring rush."

Straw House for Swine Is Easily Constructed

Where it is impossible to have a well-built hoghouse, either individual or centralized, a good straw one can be used. The north, east and west sides should have two feet of well-pressed straw, the south side may be boarded up and should have a hinged door near the roof which can be dropped during sunny weather. The roof should be tin or commercial roll roofing as straw will leak in a heavy rain or snow. Allow plenty of room for the desired number of hogs. The greatest disadvantage of this house is improper ventilation.

Avoid Crowding Chicken House Beyond Capacity

Avoid filling the chicken house with chickens beyond its capacity. Each bird ought to have at least eight inches of space on the roost. There should be one open nest to every eight hens or where trap-nests are used, one nest will accommodate four hens if the nests are visited every two hours.

EVIL EFFECTS OF HASHISH

Acts on Nervous System in Various Ways, Which Differ According to the Individual.

The Arabs call a man who indulges in the drug hashish a "hashash," the plural of which is "hashashen." A band of Moslem fanatics who flourished in the Eleventh and Twelfth centuries and devoted themselves to murdering secretly the enemies of the prophet used to fortify themselves with hashish for their desperate deeds. They came to be known as "hashashen"—hence the English word "assassin."

Hashish acts on the nervous system in various ways, which differ according to the individual and the strength of the dose. A small dose produces gaiety, a larger one hallucinations, delirium and sometimes catalepsy. An average dose induces a dreamy state, when the indulger becomes the sport of rapidly shifting ideas. The habitual "hashash" can rarely collect his thoughts, his memory goes and he is prone to curious errors of perception. Herodotus records that the Scythians burned the seeds of hemp during the purification ceremonies that took place after a death and that they became intoxicated by the fumes.—Detroit News.

BRONZE STATUE

Memorial to William Beatty to be
Erected by Knights of Pythias

At the annual meeting of the grand lodge, Knights of Pythias of Ohio, held in Toledo recently, that body authorized the appointment of a memorial commission, the purpose of which was to raise the funds and have installed the Pythian home at Springfield, a life-sized bronze statue of the late William Beatty, of Toledo, who for more than 32 years was grand keeper of records and seal of the state body.

This commission held a meeting in Columbus, Monday, October 29, for the purpose of organization and elected officers as follows: John C. Burns of Chicago and Mansfield, dean of past grand chancellors of Ohio, president emeritus; William F. Bruce, Mt.
Gilead, past grand chancellor, president; D. Henry Sell, of Akron, grand chancellor, vice president; A. L. Fry, Columbus, imperial secretary of Khorasan, secretary. Other members of the commission are: Mrs. Caroline A.
Hosfield, Akron, representing the Pythian Sisters and Nomads of Avru-daka; Clifford Brown, Cincinnati and William H. Booth of Toledo.

Grand Master of Exchequer Robert H. Schryver of Columbus, is to be the custodian of all funds for the erection of the memorial.

While it is not known definitely how much the memorial statue will cost, it has been roughly estimated at from $15,000 to $18,000. The fund to pay the cost will be raised by popular subscription among the members of the order and auxiliary bodies in the state. It is expected that statue will be completed and unveiled at the next grand lodge convention in September, 1924.

BRITAIN DISAPPOINTED

America Not to Be Represented on
Reparations Commission.

London, Dec. 3.—Intense disappointment is felt at the foreign office at the reported American refusal to nominate members to the reparations commission and the new committees of inquiry. Expressions are even given to the belief that Lord Curzon was too hasty in lending British support to Poincare's proposals prior to the sounding out of American support on the matter.

With regard to the amount of capital belonging to German nationals abroad, British experts 12 months ago estimated the amount at between £250,000,000 and £300,000,000.

This total has been drained in the interim, since Germany a short time since had considerable difficulty finding collateral as security for a credit of $5,000,000 for the purchase of coal in Great Britain.

GROUPS AT ODDS WITH REGULARS

Hold Balance of Power in Both Houses of Congress.

MAY DETERMINE LEGISLATION

Influence of Present Session of Congress to Be Powerfully Felt in the Forthcoming Presidential Campaign—Sea of Difficulties Facing the Party in Power—President Coolidge's Task.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The Sixty-eighth congress convened today for the regular session.

Never before in the nation's history has a congressional session been convened under circumstances which forecast such outstanding difficulties for the party in power.

The Republicans have a nominal majority in each house, but it is a majority existing on paper only, for in both senate and house there is a well organized minority variously termed the "progressive bloc," the "insurgent bloc," or the "LaFollette group," which has power to block every piece of legislation which the party leaders may propose and hold the balance of power over every measure which they may endorse.

Upon all of the issues now before the country there exists a sharp division between these two factions as to the duty of congress in enacting remedial legislation. The regular Republicans, for instance, stand for the Mellon tax reduction plan without change, and the Esch-Cummins railroad law left alone; the opposing group within the Republican ranks, led by LaFollette, will demand reduction of taxes on the small incomes and increased exactions from the very rich, while they want the Esch-Cummins law thrown completely out of the statute books and railroad rates on agricultural products forced down by congressional action. Upon all other questions likely to come before the congress similar differences exist.

Party Caucuses Held.

In its influence upon the forthcoming presidential campaign, the session of congress will be powerfully felt. Republican strategy will be to make a good record in passing needed laws, so that the party may go before the country in 1924, and demand election of a Republican president. Democrats, on the other hand, will seek in every way to offset Republican initiative with Democratic compromises. It is conceded furthermore by both parties that President Coolidge's prospects for obtaining the Republican nomination will depend largely upon whether or not he can control congress, or get through any of the measures which will be recommended in his message.

At the Republican caucus Saturday house progressives unsuccessfully opposed indorsement of Speaker Gillett as the Republican candidate for the speakership, and announced there were votes enough in sight to block his election unless important concessions in committee assignments and a modification of house rules were made by the organization.

Longworth of Ohio was elected Republican leader of the house without opposition, but two candidates were nominated for speaker against Gillett—Cooper of Wisconsin, leader of the progressive bloc, and Madden of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee. Gillett received 190 votes, Cooper 15 and Madden 8, while one vote was cast for Little of Kansas.

On the senate side the opposition was of a passive character. When the Republican senators assembled to re-elect Senator Lodge to the majority leadership they found that not a single member of the bloc had responded to the party conference call and that Senator Borah also was numbered among the missing.

House Democratic members met later and agreed on Representative Garret of Tennessee as the party candidate for speaker, but the meeting was only a formality, since the selection had been agreed upon months ago.

DISTRESS IN HOCKING VALLEY

Thousands of Miners and Families Will Have to Be Cared For.

Columbus, Dec. 3.—Dr. John H. Berry, superintendent of the Athens state hospital for the insane, announced here that thousands of miners in the Hocking valley will have to be cared for during the coming winter months. The conditions of many miners was never worse, and as a result of the idleness of many of the mining companies hundreds of families are already feeling the pinch of hunger, he explained.

As a result of existing conditions, there has been a slight increase in the number of cases of insanity, especially among the aged persons of the district, according to Dr. Berry, and a still further increase would not be surprising, inasmuch as want and hunger weaken the mental as well as the physical body, he pointed out. "It is no fault of the men themselves that they are not regularly employed," said Dr. Berry, "and the sad plight of their families is brought about at this time by the fact that a very small per cent of the mines in the Hocking valley have worked at all for many months."

Organized relief societies to aid the miners will be an absolute necessity unless thousands of women and children, as well as the miners themselves, are saved from starvation, according to reports from the district. Merchants in Athens, Nelsonville, Buchtel and in other Hocking valley towns and villages are doing everything possible to relieve the situation, but will be unable to cope with it because of the vast area covered by the sad conditions.

Oil Exploded.

Canton, O., Dec. 3.—Harry Wilt, 23, died in a hospital here from burns received when a can of oil exploded at his home on the Canton-Louisville road.

MYSTERY CLEARED

Bones Identified as Those of a Boy Missing for Eight Years.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 3.—The eight-year-old mystery of little Jimmy Glass' disappearance was finally and definitely cleared up when the bones found under a brush pile near Greeley by Otto Winkler were identified by Charles Glass, the boy's father. Jimmy was wearing overalls and a pair of "coward" shoes on that spring morning in 1915 when he ran out of the house to play. And among the few grim effects that had withstood that long siege of the elements were two brass snap fasteners and a part of a shoe sole on which the word "Coward" was faintly discernible. Mr. Glass, who came from Jersey City, his home, after being notified of the find considered the evidence complete. Since his son's disappearance Mr. Glass has followed clues to South America and to Europe. It is now assumed that the lad, who was then only four, got lost in the woods and after wandering around for hours succumbed to fright and exhaustion. Otto Winkler, the farmer, was hunting near Greeley when he made his tragic find.

Boat and Liquor Seized.

Sandusky, O., Dec. 3.—Police seized the 50 foot power cruiser Bachelor, believed to be Canadian craft, together with 120 cases of Canadian beer and several hundred bottles of whisky, when the boat tied up at a local pier. Lon Hoffman and Leo Hobbs, claiming to be from Toledo, members of the crew, were placed under arrest.

TREATY MENACES AMERICAN TRADE

Italy and Spain Have Vast Expansion Program.

SOUTH AMERICA THEIR FIELD

Accord Recently Sealed at Rome Held at Paris to Be a Practical Challenge to the Monroe Doctrine—Pact Also May Choke France in the Mediterranean and Menace Britain's Road to India.

Paris, Dec. 2.—A serious menace to America's South American trade influence, amounting to a practical challenge to the Monroe doctrine, looms in the new Italo-Spanish accord sealed during the visit of King Alphonso to Rome.

From the highest diplomatic sources it is learned that this accord, not only as the French fear, aims at the control of the Mediterranean, but is chiefly a union of two great Latin countries for a vast program of expansion in the southern half of the American continent.

For a long time European leaders have been alarmed at the rapid expansion of American interests in the vast empire constituting Brazil, Argentina and other South American republics. Despite the fact that a majority of the inhabitants of the countries are of Italian and Spanish descent, the old world home nations saw their influence, both political and commercial, vanishing before the assault of the North American standard bearers.

Then came the American exclusion act, which put up to Mussolini the gravest problems of his career, what to do with the ever increasing surplus population, now that the doors to the United States were mostly barred. The fertile brain of the Italian dictator then conceived the present entente with Spain. Not only does this entente strengthen these countries politically, but probably means their commercial rejuvenation.

The new Latin accord is comparable to the entente cordiale between France and Great Britain, which changed the destinies of Europe. The clasped hands of Mussolini and Primo De Rivera of Spain may effectively choke France in the Mediterranean, and at the same time seriously menace Great Britain's road to India.

When Spain and Italy, who already have the advantage of a common Latin language in South America together with racial affiliations, add to this preferred tariff schedules, liberal exchanges and immigration preferences, their dangerous rivalry for the trade now practically monopolized by America will not be questioned.

COAL AND OIL FIELDS FOUND IN ALASKA

Group of Scientists Return With Vast Amount of Data.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The return to Washington of a group of scientist and explorers sent out by the geological survey of the interior department places at the disposal of the government a vast amount of data on the possibility of extracting coal and oil from Alaska.

Coal in large deposits and two large seeps of oil were found, and the party reports it feasible to mine the commodities needed in heating and lubricating various plants and machines.

The navy's largest petroleum reserve, 35,000 square miles in the Arctic circle of Alaska territory, was explored in part and valuable new information collected which will be of great benefit to the government in future explorations and calculations.

Two oil deposits were studied at Cape Simpson, on the bleak coast of northern Alaska. Much coal was located there throughout the region explored and particularly to the westward near Cape Beaufort, where many seams of workable thickness were examined and measured. The physical conditions, the best method of travel and a general survey of the region were noted in the books of the explorers and deposited with the department.

GOINGS IN OHIO

Alleged Murder Confessions.

Bowling Green, O., Dec. 3.—Arrested here in connection with the murder of Edward E. Keep, alleged gambling house proprietor, who was shot to death nearly six years ago, Frank Simonds, 28, local contracting carpenter, and two other men confessed their guilt, according to Prosecutor Ray D. Avery. The two other men, also under arrest, have told stories similar to that of Simonds, the prosecutor declares. They are: Vernon Rodeberger, 27, of Sharon, Pa. and Floyd Houser, 29, of East Cleveland.

World's Record Broken.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 3.—The world's record for production of pig iron was broken in November by the blast furnace of the Trumbull Cliffs Furnace company, near Warren, the company announced. The furnace, using ore only, made 25,303 tons in the month, a daily average of 840 tons. The previous record, also held by this furnace, was 754 tons. The rated capacity of the plant is 600 tons.

Robbed of Precious Stones.

Toledo, Dec. 3.—William Sterns, an independent jewelry salesman from Philadelphia, was robbed of diamonds and other precious stones worth $75,000 at the Union depot, he reported to the police. Sterns set his handbag down while he purchased a ticket to Columbus, and when he looked for the grip it was gone. The jewels were in it.

Woman Robbed.

Cincinnati, Dec. 3.—After felling Miss Frances Shaw, 35, with a heavy blow and chasing a negro maid into the yard with a knife, two young men ripped the former's stockings to shreds and escaped with $475 in currency. One of the men is alleged to have formerly roomed in Miss Shaw's residence.

Helped Quell Riot.

Cincinnati, Dec. 3.—Funeral services were held here for Thomas Henry Wright, 74, who died at the home of his daughter. Mr. Wright took an active part in quelling the famous courthouse riot in 1884, having been a member of a party of 32 men who held the rioters in check the first night of the trouble.

Hit by Train.

Troy, O., Dec. 3.—A freight train struck an automobile containing three men at Laura, 12 miles west of here, injuring two of them. The men, Eli Sease, 44, of Potsdam, O.; Boyd Henderson, 41, of Laura, and Raymond Sandow, 25, were returning to their homes after work in a neighboring town.

Suffocated by Fumes.

Dayton, O., Dec. 3.—H. S. Forsythe, 40, manager of a Cleveland fumigating company, was suffocated and an employee of a Dayton store was overcome and may die following the fumigating of a store here.

Killed in Brawl.

New Philadelphia, O., Dec. 3.—Marion Eves, 45, was shot and killed in a poolroom brawl at Dover. Fred Green, 26, is under arrest.

Three Persons Injured.

Akron, O., Dec. 3.—Three women, a child and a man, all of this city, were injured when an auto driven by Norman Kerr swerved across a crowded sidewalk in the business section and crashed into a large show window of a dry goods store. Falling glass was the cause of most of the injuries.

TERMS HELD IMPOSSIBLE

French Treaty With Ruhr Magnates Condemned.

RUINOUS PLEDGES EXACTED

Berlin Predicts That After Temporary Improvement the Situation in the Ruhr Will Deteriorate Further. French Tributary State Seen on Ruins of Rhinish Economic Life. Pact's Provisions.

Berlin, Dec. 3.—Oppression by the French army of occupation, the terrible need of 3,000,000 unemployed, with the reign of terror inaugurated by separatists armed by the French, during the last week forced the mine owners of the Ruhr and Rhine to conclude a treaty with the French and Belgians which will have momentous consequences.

The mines of the Rhineland and Westphalia are pledged in the future to deliver to France coal and coke to the extent of 15 to 35 per cent of the production of the year 1921. Besides this the army of occupation is to receive coal gratis, and the Rhinish railroads are to be supplied at prices fixed by France. Moreover, for every ton of coal sold in unoccupied territory or abroad, 10 French gold francs are to be paid. For the period since the occupation of the Ruhr an additional coal tax of $15,000,000 is imposed.

These conditions are held impossible here. After a temporary improvement the situation in the Ruhr will further deteriorate, which is said to be France's political aim. On the ruins of Rhinish economic life, the French tributary state in the Rhineland is to develop. The great danger is that the French will be successful in this aim.

Economic and social conditions in Germany are increasingly gloomy, aggravated by the political crisis which has led to eight cancellations since the revolution. The lack of strong personalities in public life is bitterly felt. Party wrangles appear to many professional politicians as more important than questions vital to national existence.

In Germany the people are growing apathetic toward a sterile parliamentarism. Yet it must not be forgotten that France since the war has sabotaged all constructive measures by a refusal of a reasonable settlement of the reparations question and economic chicanery.

At present everything is pressing towards a decisive crisis. The following are the imperative demands of the hour: The immediate settlement of the whole problem of reparations with the granting to Germany of a moratorium of several years; a reasonable supply of foodstuffs for the population for the coming winter; establishment of the finances of the reich and the several federal states on a sound basis with strict avoidance of unproductive expenditure, and economizing production in industry and agriculture by increasing the output to the utmost capacity.

FOR FEDERAL REGULATION

McAdoo Outlines His Position on the Railroad Problem.

San Francisco, Dec. 3.—William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, war-time director of the railroads, and probable candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, speaking at the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Fireman and Enginemen, outlined his position on the railroad problem.

McAdoo said that he did not think government ownership "is the wisest solution of the railroad problem," but that "an earnest effort should be made to secure railroad reform, preserving the principle of private operation, but under more effective federal regulation."

"If that fails," McAdoo declared, "after a final test, the alternative of government ownership may become inevitable. The question ought to be taken out of partisan politics and dealt with as a common sense economic problem and with a desire to find a solution that will be just to all interests, namely, to the public, to labor and to capital."

Alleged Slayer Caught.

Canton, O., Dec. 3.—Felix Rusco, 27, was brought to Canton from Beaver Falls, Pa., and lodged in the city jail on a charge of slaying Tony Vandenue, 45, in Canton, eight months ago.

SIX HUNDRED DEAD

Dire Result of the Breaking of a Big Dam in Italy.

Rome, Dec. 3.—Six hundred lives have been lost as the result of the breaking of the big dam at Lake Gleno, according to figures received here. The town of Dezzo has been completely inundated, as have several other towns and hamlets in the Brembana valley. Troops have been rushed to the scene to aid in the identification of the bodies which are strewn throughout the valley. It is probable that martial law will be declared to prevent looting.

The raging torrents, which are leaving millions of dollars' worth of destroyed buildings in their wake, have not yet abated and an alarm has been sounded to all towns in northern Italy. The dam, which was 30 yards high, 5 kilometers long, collapsed in several places at once without notice and the waters of Lake Gleno were unleashed with unprecedented fury. Rain continues to fall in the devastated area, hampering the relief work.

Guardsmen Meet.

Columbus, Dec. 3.—The convention of the Ohio national guard and the State Rifle association opened today in the chamber of commerce auditorium and will continue through Tuesday. Officers will be elected at the closing session tomorrow. Speakers include Roy E. Layton, former adjutant general, who will discuss "Court-martial," and General F. D. Henderson, adjutant general, "Armory Building and Maintenance."

Sentenced to Life Imprisonment.

Cincinnati, Dec. 3.—Two confessed bandits, Dale R. Waterfield, 26, and Herbert Weisenberger, 27, were sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary. They pleaded guilty to second degree murder for the killing of Edward McClain, alias "Mississippi," of Little Rock, Ark., the third member of their holdup party. McClain was shot accidentally when the two were attempting to hold up a man.

SHADE VETERAN OF 2 WARS

South Dakota Legion Man Had Many Experiences in Philippines and in France.

M. L. Shade of Mitchell, S. D., a veteran of two wars, has one recollection of army life that he claims is unforgettable, and at least is so unusual that experiences of any A. E. F. men cannot duplicate it, unless they be "gobs". Shade, an ardent American Legion worker in South Dakota, declares that he spent 90 days on an army transport without setting foot on shore, during the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection following.

He was born in Princeton, Ill., in 1876, and at the age of fifteen was thrown on his own resources, with but a scant education gained in rural schools. His earlier life work was that of a laborer in mines, steel mills and on farms.

But the war with Spain came and he enlisted with an Iowa Guard regiment ordered to San Francisco, which embarked on the transport Covington for Manila. After a long sea voyage the boat was sailed into Manila bay, but orders were changed and the ship was sent southward with the troops. At Iloilo Iloilo the transport put in, but the troops were held up again. Back the ship went to Cavite, where, after 90 days, the men set foot ashore.

Shade served with his regiment in several severe engagements, and on discharge re-enlisted with another Philippine organization. In all, he fought in 222 battles. He was mustered out at Manila in 1901, remaining there for a period on confidential work for the government.

Back in the States, he became associated with life insurance firms in Rockford, Ill., and while there was a member of the National Guard. Then he went to Texas, where he was hit by the panic of 1907, but, undaunted, made his way back to Sioux Falls, S. D., joining the guard almost immediately after his arrival there. He served as chief of police of Mitchell, S. D., in 1911, and received a commission as major in the South Dakota Guard that year. He was called for border service in 1916, and was discharged early in 1917.

At the outbreak of the World war he was sent to Camp Greene, N. C., and was attached to the Forty-first division. During overseas service he commanded several ammunition guard units, served with the French at Soissons and was sent to St. Aignan-Noyers to establish a large replacement depot for motor transportation. He was later commissioned as lieutenant colonel and ordered to Romorantin, where he assumed command of the air service shops, built up from a personnel of 600 to 7,000 men. He virtually commanded all troop units at this camp.

Before he sailed for America he was cited for meritorious service and given a full colonelcy. On his arrival in South Dakota he was named to the state highway commission, of which he is now a member.

His work for the American Legion has been thorough and enthusiastic. He led the local post of the Legion during its early days and served in several capacities with this post. He was named as department commander in South Dakota in 1919-1920, and was national executive committeeman during that time. He has been a delegate to all national conventions of the Legion and has served on convention committees of military policy and of finance.

In all his reminiscences of army days, however, Colonel Shade declares that none are so vivid as those spent dodging around the Philippines on the army transport, seeking a place to land.

Removed Flags From Graves.

Legion members in Rutherford, N. J., recently appeared before the city council to protest the action of municipal employees in removing flags from the graves of veterans in a local cemetery. The flags had been removed following a "clean up" of the burial place and were discovered by the Legion men in a dirt heap outside the cemetery.

Rich Evening Gown Is in Dull Green Chiffon

This charming evening gown is in dull green chiffon sumptuously embroidered with dull gold beads.

Poplin Is One of Most Satisfactory Fabrics

Poplin is one of the most satisfactory materials that we can buy.

The name poplin is from the French word "popeline" and means "luster." It is a fine, soft, lightweight fabric of many varieties, but you can always recognize it by its distinguishing feature—that of having a fine cord running across the cloth.

This corded or ribbed effect is produced by having a fine warp thread and then a soft, heavier filling thread. Its warp yarns are so fine, and there are so many of them, that they cover up the coarser filling yarns completely. These, because of their coarseness, form the ribs across the goods.

We can perfectly understand, now, what happened to our old poplin dress hanging in the closet. The fine warp threads broke down, and left its "ribs" exposed.

That can easily happen, from the very nature of the goods, if a weak quality of yarn has been used in the warp. The heavy cord, often cotton in a wool or silk poplin, simply cuts through the finer warp threads.

As a rule, however, a good quality of thread is used in the warp, for the very good reason that it is thrown to the surface and so is going to have to bear the heaviest brunt of the wear. Because the filling yarns keep under cover anyway, a much cheaper quality can be used without shortening the life of the cloth much.

Not all poplins are silk, by any means. You can find it in silk, wool, or cotton; and not only that, but in silk-and-cotton, silk-and-wool, and wool-and-cotton.

The highest qualities of cotton poplin are often mercerized so that it is very attractive and has a sheen almost as lustrous as that of silk. Naturally, it is exceedingly durable, and stands laundering well.

Wool poplin has a more or less wiry and springy feel, and so keeps its shape well.

Silk poplin is also elastic, and so keeps clean, and does not wrinkle or crush easily.

We frequently hear an objection voiced against silk and wool poplin by some dressmakers on the ground that the coarse filling cord makes the garment bulky in the seam. A good tailor says that this can be partly overcome by making the goods with the filling threads running up and down; and that this also insures the poplin falling in more graceful folds.

Winsome Blues Among Most Popular Colors

Among the colors that have been introduced for the present season one finds a marked favor accorded certain shades of blue, notably those that are found in the art and the embroideries of China. Distinguished by brilliancy, they are handled with great skill and are vastly more becoming than one would suspect, for in modern designing even the smallest bit of color is employed with telling effect.

There is another blue that is exploited by a very well-known French costume designer. In its clear tones, with a hint of green it is one of the most beautiful shades imaginable.

Sapphire blue comes in for a great deal of attention, especially in frocks destined for evening wear. A crowd that gathered around a shop window when the entire space was given over to evening dresses of blue velvet proved beyond doubt that the color has caught the feminine fancy. Almost without exception they were fashioned on slender graceful lines, with a note of contrast introduced in silver embroideries or motifs of crystal beads and brilliants. The effect was strikingly lovely.

Hanging Tapestries.

Tapestry panels may be framed in moulding or hung on the wall curtain fashion, suspended from a brass rod by means of rings sewed on tape. The latter is rather favored for large tapestries.

Rhode Island School Leader.

The first public school in New England, believed to be the first in the United States, was launched at Newport, R. I., 283 years ago, when the men of Rhode Island voted to support such an institution to be conducted by the Rev. Robert Lenthal, a Church of England clergyman.

In the colonial days in America little thought was given to the education of the children of the "common" people, and among the well-to-do the opinion generally prevailed that such people were better off without any education.

The Rhode Islanders did not share this view, however, and when Rev. Mr. Lenthal proposed to "keep a public school for the learning of youth" he found ready support for his project. He was granted 100 acres of land to be "laid forth and appropriated for a school, for encouragement of the poorer sort, to train up their youth in learning."—Capper's Weekly.

CUPID AIDS REALTY AGENT
New Yorker Specializes in Procuring Homes for the Newly-weds.

An uptown real estate agent is doing a thriving renting business by keeping in touch with his neighborhood and listening in on all gossip. When he hears of an engagement of a couple he immediately calls upon them to learn what their plans for a home may be, and a day or so later meets them with his car, conducts them to several apartment houses where he has something for rent, and in the end usually succeeds in getting their signature to a lease on an apartment which otherwise they might have considered too high priced.
He finds that, generally speaking, young couples favor a small apartment—living room, bedroom, kitchen and bath. When an addition arrives to their family he is again on hand with larger apartments. He wins them over to a more expensive, larger place, sublets their own apartment for them and earns two commissions.—New York Sun and Globe.

PLAYING "HOOKEY" FROM SCHOOL IN GUAM COSTLY

Mothers of Children Back Truancy Law to Avoid Paying Fine of 15 Cents.

A native mother on the island of Guam will sit all day at a school room window to prevent her offspring from playing hookey. This is not because of her desire that the child shall acquire learning, but to avoid paying the truancy fine of 15 cents.
Chaplain W. L. Thompson, U. S. N., school superintendent, says he is endeavoring to adapt the work of education on the island to the particular needs of the natives. The Chamorros take readily to penmanship, mathematics, and all kinds of mechanics. The children frequently know American history more thoroughly than youngsters in the United States of the same age.
"We have standardized the eight grammar grades and added a high school, which places the educational facilities of Guam on a par with those in the Philippines and the United States," the superintendent says.
"The industrial classes, despite our limited funds and equipment, have been especially successful. Lace making, basketry, and hemp weaving of various articles have reached a high grade of perfection. The boys in their carpentry classes make the furniture and other wooden fittings for the schools. The girls so readily take to dressmaking that American clothes are gradually replacing the graceful costume of the native women.
"The real problem is presented by the classes in cooking and gardening. The children enter with zest into the competitive raising of many kinds of vegetables. They also learn the principles of dietetics and do excellent cooking. But they refuse to carry home any of the vegetables they raise or to eat anything they cook, with one exception, cake.
"The native diet consists mainly of rice and fish, and the natives prefer the canned Alaska salmon, if they can pay for it, to the delicious fish of these waters.
"But we cannot impress upon them the desirability of eating vegetables. It is almost impossible to persuade the children or adults to even taste an unfamiliar food. Consequently the instruction in cooking and gardening, to date, has shown little practical result."

FIND REMAINS OF ESKIMOS.

Archeologists Examine Bones of Skeletons at Rochester.
Archeologists are examining five skeletons unearthed at Rochester, N. Y., by contractors at work on a new road near here. The bones, believed those of Indians of remote age, were found in sitting positions by the excavators. No trinkets or other Indian relics were found.
Alvin H. Dewey, of Morgan Chapter, New York State Archaeological society, believes the bones those of members of a race of Eskimos that roamed Canada and western New York state before the Iroquois. No records of Iroquois burials in sitting positions have been recorded, he said.
The bones are in the city morgue and will be buried at the completion of the investigation. They were in a state of perfect preservation when dug from the soil.

KILLS BEARS WITH ARROWS

Alaska Doctor Uses Primitive Weapon to Hunt in Alaska.
"Want to be a real sportsman? Then carry a bow and arrow out into the wilderness." So declares Dr. Walter W. Council, who has killed nine of Alaska's famous brown bears, three of them with heavy arrows shot from a 7-foot yew-wood bow.
Doctor Council, who is head surgeon and owner of the General hospital at Cordova, doubled up an old mattress and hung it at one end of the basement in the hospital. Into this he daily practiced shooting arrows until he acquired strength enough in the arms to push an arrow entirely through the 18 inches of cotton, hair and cloth.

GEYSER FOUND IN CRATER

Scientist Sees End of "Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes."
C. M. Fenner, a scientist from the Carnegie Institute, Washington, who reached Seattle, Wash., recently from an extensive exploration trip in Alaska, announced he had discovered an enormous mud geyser in the depths of the smoking and rumbling crater of Mount Katmai.
Fenner stated it was his belief that within a few years "the valley of ten thousand smokes" would be a thing of the past owing to the rapid disappearance of smoke-emitting vents.
Bathing Nude at Night Legal.
Bathing without suits on the beach in evening and early morning could become the custom at Santa Barbara, Cal., as it has been discovered the old bathing ordinance in force does not require suits at night. It has been known for some time that bathing parties have been held sans suits.

Plucks Huge Lemon.

Eccentricities of Genius.
Paul Verlaine, a modern French poet, was a genius whose life was passed in alternate stages of religious ecstasy and deplorable excesses. After 1870 he led the traditional bohemian life in Paris, then disappeared for eleven years. In 1881 he appeared in the public eye as a quasi-Catholic with his "Sageesse," perhaps his best-known work. From this time to his death in 1896 Verlaine remained, except for brief intervals, among the cafes of the Latin quarter, drinking absinthe, carousing and writing verse and journalistic articles.

All Like to Give Advice.

A funny kink in human nature is that while men dislike to be told facts, they love to tell facts to others, writes Fred Kelly. Nearly everybody is trying to dodge facts. We are all seeking less reality and more fiction. Story books always sell better than those containing plain truths. Indeed, the only way to be sure of having facts read is to dress them up in story form as if they weren't necessarily true. But while we are trying to avoid hearing too many facts, some of which are likely to be unpleasant, what fun it is to meet somebody who will listen to a few of the things we know! Thus we find here a fortunate situation. When we have to learn something, it is not difficult to obtain reliable information. The man who is an authority on almost any subject is willing to drop his work and give first-hand knowledge to any one that comes and asks for it. Indeed, there is no surer way to gain a man's undying friendship than to go to him seeking advice. Even though his time is extremely valuable, the man who knows and knows that he knows, will talk and pass on his knowledge just as long as the caller will listen. In more than twenty-five years' experience as a reporter, I have never yet been refused information by a real authority. The business man who fails to find out what he needs to know has only himself to blame. There is always somebody who would gladly tell him. Even one's competitor will usually answer almost any reasonable question about his business.—Nation's Business.

His Alibi.

The squirrel was walking through the village one day, wearing a very shabby coat, when he met a friend.

"Surely you are ashamed to be seen in such a dreadful coat?" said the friend.

"Certainly not," replied the squirrel. "Everybody knows me here."

A week later the squirrel was in Birmingham, still wearing the old coat, when he chanced to meet his friend, who again commented upon his untidy appearance.

"What does it matter?" was the reply. "Nobody knows me here."

OLD RESIDENCE SOLD.

The old Tuthill residence on South Broadway at the intersection of Walnut street, Lancaster, which has been the home of the Tuthill family for more than a century was sold by the heirs of the late John Tuthill to George Rabe, who will convert the residence into a business property. The property was built by Mr. Claspil, the great-grandfather of Mrs. Clara J. Bradley.

World's Potato Crop Ranks High

Greatest Production Is in Northwest Europe Where Conditions Are Best.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The importance of potatoes in world agriculture is emphasized in a special report published by the United States Department of Agriculture. The world crop was estimated at more than five billion bushels last year, exclusive of Russia. In countries reporting to date, the 1923 crop is 79 per cent of that in 1922. Figures in both years do not include the many small patches of potatoes grown in gardens for home use, the department says.

Region of Great Production.

The region of greatest potato production is in northwestern Europe where the soil and climatic conditions favor the production of potatoes and rye rather than of corn and wheat, the department says. In this region potatoes play an important part in the diet of the people, in the manufacture of alcohol and in feed for live stock. Variations in potato production in northwestern Europe therefore affect the market for American wheat, rye and corn, the department points out.

Germany is the world's largest producer of potatoes, the report states. Production this year is estimated at 1,200,000,000 bushels as compared with 1,494,181,000 bushels in 1922. Poland ranks second as a potato producer with an estimated production in 1923 of 806,022,000 bushels as compared with 1,220,576,000 bushels last year. Production of 15 countries in the northern hemisphere this year is estimated at 3,089,036,000 bushels as compared with 3,900,730,000 bushels in 1922.

Annual Imports Large.

During the pre-war period annual imports of potatoes into the United States were around 3,658,000 bushels, or a little more than twice the quantity exported. Since 1920, however, there has been a marked decrease in imports until in 1922 the quantity shipped from foreign countries was only 1,775,000 bushels, the department says. This was less than one-half the average quantity imported during 1910-14, and more than 1,000,000 bushels less than American exports last year. More than 60 per cent of American exports go to Cuba.

The Netherlands leads as an exporter of potatoes, and supplies at least 25 per cent of the world's total exports, the department says. Last year Italy exported approximately 5,000,000 bushels, Canada 4,000,000 bushels, and Denmark 2,000,000 bushels.

Rattling in Breathing

Not Uncommon in Fowls

Rattling in breathing is not uncommon among fowls of all ages. It is usually due to too much mucus in the throat, windpipe or bronchial tubes. Anything that irritates the lining of the breathing tubes increases the mucus flow and produces an obstructed breath. Bronchitis, canker, roup and other acute diseases may show this symptom. The constant breathing of dry dust, especially if it be gritty and alkaline, is sometimes responsible where fowls show this trouble but have no real disease. In its advanced stages, "rattles" is a hard disease to cure. The best help comes through prevention. Pure air, clean dropping boards and floors, sweet food and water do more to prevent "rattles" than drugs.

New Seed Treatment Is Time Saver for Farmer

One great advantage in using the copper carbonate dust method for treating seed wheat and oats for the control of smut is the fact that the work can be done in the late fall or winter when other farm tasks are less arduous. J. G. Leach, plant authority of the University of Minnesota, says that two ounces of the copper carbonate dust should be used for each bushel of grain. After treatment the grain can be sacked or stored in a bin until spring, when it is ready to plant without further attention. "This method has given results as good as any obtained with formaldehyde," says Mr. Leach. "It causes no seed injury, is less trouble to apply and all the work can be done in the fall or winter before the spring rush."

Straw House for Swine Is Easily Constructed

Where it is impossible to have a well-built hoghouse, either individual or centralized, a good straw one can be used. The north, east and west sides should have two feet of well-pressed straw, the south side may be boarded up and should have a hinged door near the roof which can be dropped during sunny weather. The roof should be tin or commercial roll roofing as straw will leak in a heavy rain or snow. Allow plenty of room for the desired number of hogs. The greatest disadvantage of this house is improper ventilation.

Avoid Crowding Chicken House Beyond Capacity

Avoid filling the chicken house with chickens beyond its capacity. Each bird ought to have at least eight inches of space on the roost. There should be one open nest to every eight hens or where trapnests are used, one nest will accommodate four hens if the nests are visited every two hours.

EVIL EFFECTS OF HASHISH

Acts on Nervous System in Various Ways, Which Differ According to the Individual.

The Arabs call a man who indulges in the drug hashish a "hashash," the plural of which is "hashashes." A band of Moslem fanatics who flourished in the Eleventh and Twelfth centuries and devoted themselves to murdering secretly the enemies of the prophet used to fortify themselves with hashish for their desperate deeds. They came to be known as "hashash-keen"—hence the English word "assassin."

Hashish acts on the nervous system in various ways, which differ according to the individual and the strength of the dose. A small dose produces gaiety, a larger one hallucinations, delirium and sometimes catalepsy. An average dose induces a dreamy state, when the indulger becomes the sport of rapidly shifting ideas. The habitual "hashash" can rarely collect his thoughts, his memory goes and he is prone to curious errors of perception.

BRONZE STATUE

Memorial to William Beatty to be
Erected by Knights of Pythias

At the annual meeting of the grand lodge, Knights of Pythias of Ohio, held in Toledo recently, that body authorized the appointment of a memorial commission, the purpose of which was to raise the funds and have installed the Pythian home at Springfield, a life-sized bronze statue of the late William Beatty, of Toledo, who for more than 32 years was grand keeper of records and seal of the state body.

This commission held a meeting in Columbus, Monday, October 29, for the purpose of organization and elected officers as follows: John C. Burns of Chicago and Mansfield, dean of past grand chancellors of Ohio, president emeritus; William F. Bruce, Mt. Gilead, past grand chancellor, president; D. Henry Sell, of Akron, grand chancellor, vice president; A. L. Fry, Columbus, imperial secretary of Khora san, secretary. Other members of the commission are: Mrs. Caroline A. Hosfield, Akron, representing the Pythian Sisters and Nomads of Avudaka; Clifford Brown, Cincinnati and William H. Booth of Toledo.

Grand Master of Exchequer Robert H. Schryver of Columbus, is to be the custodian of all funds for the erection of the memorial.

While it is not known definitely how much the memorial statue will cost, it has been roughly estimated at from $15,000 to $18,000. The fund to pay the cost will be raised by popular subscription among the members of the order and auxiliary bodies in the state. It is expected that statue will be completed and unveiled at the next grand lodge convention in September, 1924.

BRITAIN DISAPPOINTED

America Not to Be Represented on Reparations Commission.

London, Dec. 3.—Intense disappointment is felt at the foreign office at the reported American refusal to nominate members to the reparations commission and the new committees of inquiry. Expressions are even given to the belief that Lord Curzon was too hasty in lending British support to Poincare's proposals prior to the sounding out of American support on the matter.

With regard to the amount of capital belonging to German nationals abroad, British experts 12 months ago estimated the amount at between £250,000,000 and £300,000,000.

This total has been drained in the interim since Germany a short time since had considerable difficulty finding collateral as security for a credit of $3,000,000 for the purchase of coal in Great Britain.

Max. C. Seyfert Sr., died at his home, 119 South Pickaway street, Sunday night at ten o'clock. His death was due to complications. He had been ill for the past two years.

The deceased was born in Saxony, Germany, July 14, 1855 and was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Carl Seyfert. He came to this country when he was an infant, two years of age.

Mr. Seyfert married Miss Eleanor M. Reber, who with three sons and one daughter survive. The children are Carl R. Seyfert of Cleveland; Paul R. Seyfert of Louisville, Kentucky; Max C. Seyfert Jr., and Miss Huldah E. Seyfert of this city. A daughter, Eleanor, died in infancy.

Of his immediate family one sister is living, Mrs. Clara Hewes, of New York City.

The deceased retired from a business career some five years ago. He was a fine performer on the violin and in later years he taught a class of students in Columbus. Few men were as devoted to the violin as Mr. Seyfert. He was not only a fine musician but a good critic.

The funeral services will be held at his late home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Floyd E. Logee will officiate. Interment in Forest cemetery.

HOME MISSIONS

Splendid Program Rendered at M. E.
Church Sunday Evening.

A very interesting program was rendered Sunday evening at the First Methodist Episcopal church by the Woman's Home Missionary society in its Thank Offering service.

Mrs. E. L. Tolbert, president of the society, had charge of the meeting and Mrs. J. H. Freeman of Delaware, Ohio national treasurer, made a splendid address, giving much valuable information in reference to the work and aims of the organization.

Solos were given by Mrs. John Hyde Dunlap, of Williamsport, and Mrs. Edwin K. Johnson, of this city.

An interesting part of the exercises was the formation of the society's emblem by Mrs. E. J. Rife, Mrs. C. W. Imbler, Mrs. Charles B. Stofer, Mrs. Fred R. Nicholas and Miss Mary J. Eaton, with Mrs. William T. Ulm, as reader.
